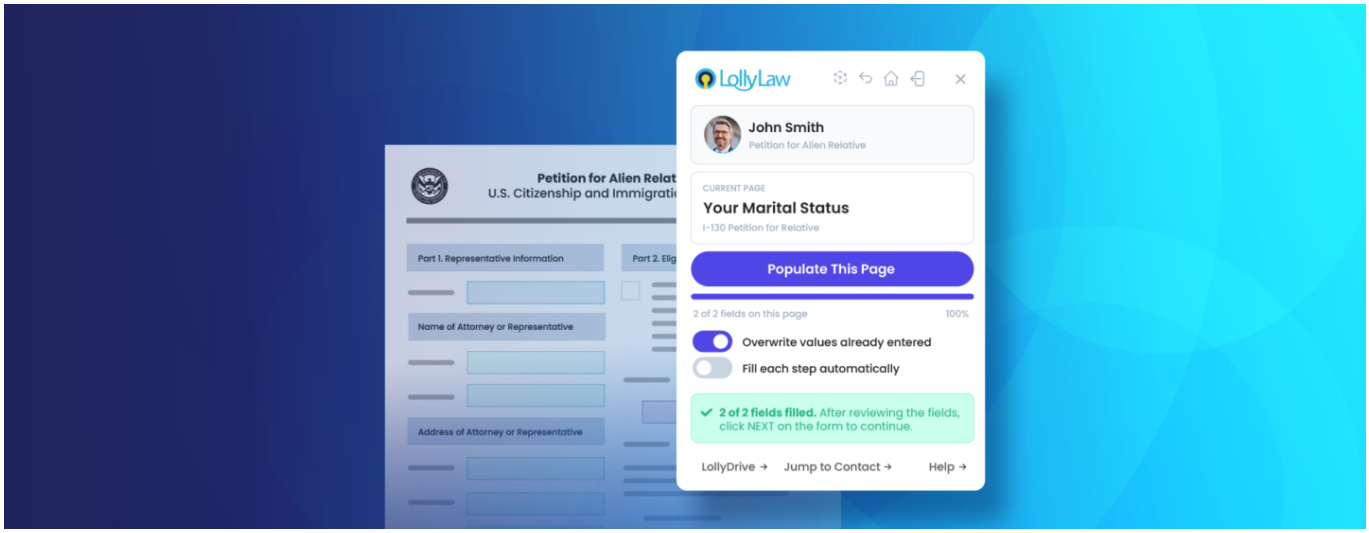
Introducing LollyLaw e-File: A Faster Way to Compliantly File USCIS Forms Online

written by Taylor Dahlem | November 17, 2026



USCIS e-filing is quickly becoming the expectation for immigration firms. Under an interim final rule that took effect in August 2026, USCIS can now require individual forms to be filed online, with at least 60 days' notice for each one. As these requirements expand, immigration firms need a reliable way to incorporate online filing into their everyday workflows.

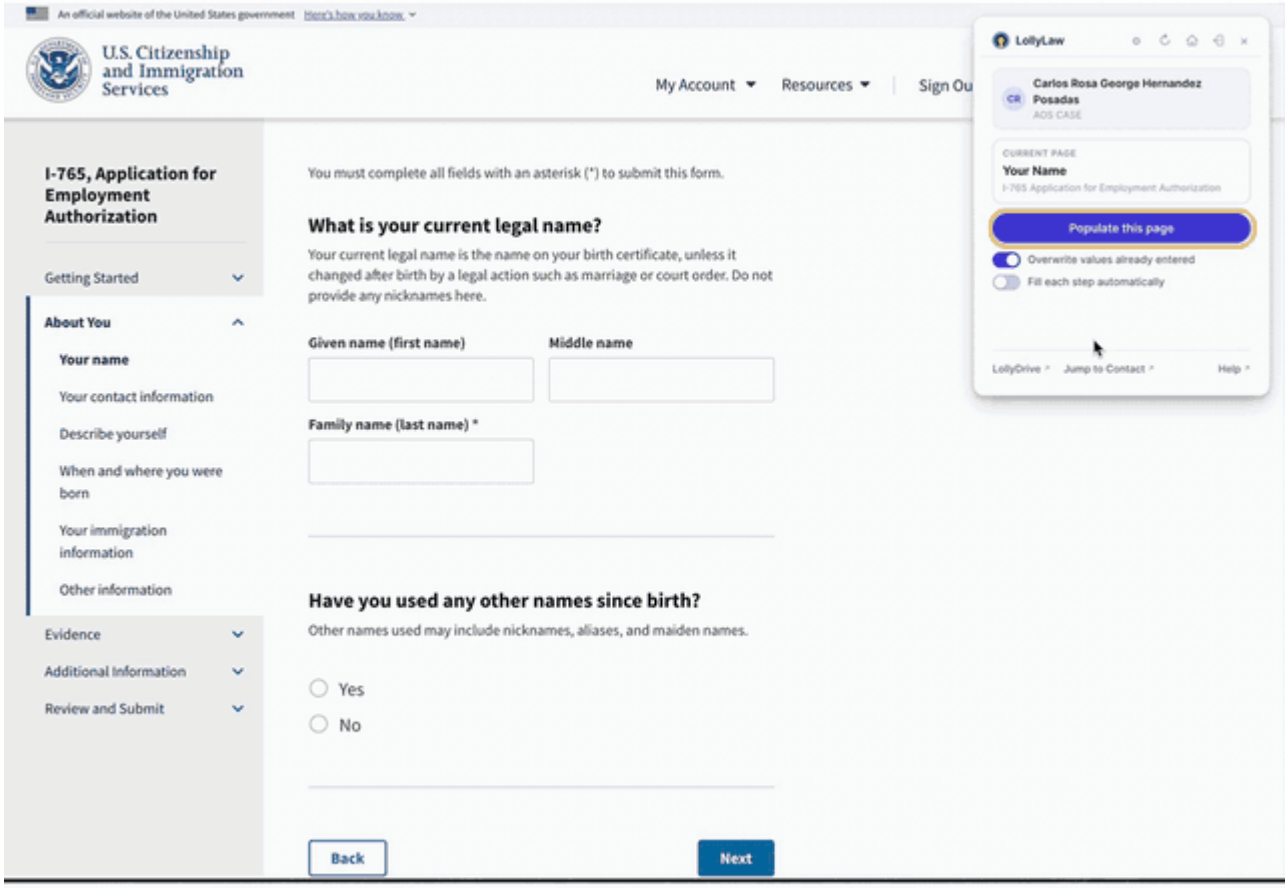
For many firms, that still means manually retyping information they've already collected. Client and case details may be organized digitally, but completing forms on the USCIS website often requires entering that same information again, one field at a time. That repetitive work takes time away from case preparation and creates more opportunities for errors that could delay a filing or cause it to be rejected.

LollyLaw's newly launched e-File feature puts that existing client information to work. The Chrome extension automatically populates supported USCIS online forms using the client information already stored in LollyLaw's secure immigration case management platform, reducing manual data entry without requiring a separate legal e-filing software subscription.

LollyLaw's e-File enables your firm to:

- Seamlessly complete and file all of USCIS' e-Filing eligible forms online up to 90% faster by automatically populating data directly from your LollyLaw account
- Stay compliant with USCIS e-Filing requirements with access to all of USCIS' e-Filing eligible forms right at your fingertips
- Maintain data consistency across filings, with names, dates, and case details pulled from a single source of truth
- Track case progress and milestones after filing, with USCIS receipt numbers stored automatically in LollyLaw

Let's take a closer look at how LollyLaw e-File works.



Complete All USCIS-Eligible Forms Online Up to 90% Faster

Filling out USCIS forms manually means rekeying the same details for every form, every client, and every case. For firms filing at high volume, that data entry time adds up quickly.

With LollyLaw e-File, the contact and matter information already stored in LollyLaw is applied directly to the right fields on the USCIS form, helping firms complete USCIS online forms up to 90% faster than manual entry. To make this possible, thousands of LollyLaw data fields are mapped to USCIS form fields. Because those mappings are built into LollyLaw, our team updates them in real time whenever USCIS changes a form, so your team never has to manage that process.

LollyLaw e-File supports all USCIS e-file eligible forms available on their website.

For forms submitted by PDF upload, your team can generate a completed form from LollyLaw's built-in forms library and upload it directly to your USCIS account. The forms library is updated within an hour of each official USCIS release, and every new edition is reviewed by our subject matter experts, so your firm is always working from the current version.

Keep Every Filing Secure and Compliant in One Platform

Immigration filings contain some of the most sensitive information a client will ever share: passport details, A-numbers, birth dates, and immigration history. When that data is exported to spreadsheets, downloaded to local drives, or copied between systems, each extra step is another opportunity for client data to be exposed or entered incorrectly.

With LollyLaw e-File, LollyLaw becomes the single source for every filing. Client information is pulled directly from your LollyLaw contact and matter records into the USCIS form. The data never has to pass through another platform on its way to USCIS, so fewer systems handle it, which helps your firm better protect client confidentiality.

Your firm can file with confidence, knowing client information stays protected in LollyLaw until the moment it reaches USCIS.

Ensure Case Records Stay Up-to-Date After Filing

Submitting a form is just one milestone in an immigration case. Once you file, your team needs to track progress and keep documents organized. Too often, that post-filing work happens outside the case management system, with receipt numbers kept in spreadsheets, notices saved to desktops, and status updates passed along by email.

LollyLaw keeps filing information connected to the case record as it progresses. With LollyLaw's USCIS receipt notice tracking, your team can track receipt numbers in LollyLaw alongside case milestones on each matter, so anyone on your team can see where a case stands. Receipt notices and filed forms can be saved to the client's matter in LollyDrive, LollyLaw's built-in document management system, keeping every filing record in one organized place. And with 40+ pre-built immigration workflows that map tasks, deadlines, and milestones to each case type, your team knows the next step as soon as a form is filed.

From intake to filing to final decision, every step of the case stays organized and visible in one platform.
